

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A glove, for use while eating, comprising:

5 a wrist portion;

a palm portion;

a finger portion, having a plurality of fingers, the wrist portion, palm portion, and finger portion together creating a continuous interior for accommodating a human hand 10 extending up into the fingertips;

a pocket, having a front panel and a rear panel, a bottom seam and a top opening, the rear panel attached to the finger portion and extending across the palm portion, the bottom seam extending across the palm portion, the top 15 opening extending across the fingers, the pocket capable of accommodating a food item which is partially exposed at the top opening for eating said food item.

2. The glove as recited in claim 1, wherein the fingers each 20 have a finger tip fully opposite from the wrist portion, and wherein the top opening of the pocket extends immediately below at least two of the finger tips.

3. The glove as recited in claim 1, wherein the finger 25 portion includes five fingers.

4. The glove as recited in claim 3, further comprising a skirt, extending laterally outward circumferentially around the wrist portion below the pocket, for catching falling food debris.

5

5. A convenient eating method, using a glove having a wrist portion, a palm portion, a plurality fingers having fingertips, a pocket attached to at least two of the fingers having a top opening extending across the fingers and located near the fingertips, for use by a user having a hand, in eating a food item, comprising the steps of:

donning the glove by extending the hand of the user fully within the glove to the fingertips;

placing the food item into the pocket;

grasping the food item with the hand while it remains in the pocket;

exposing a portion of the food item at the top opening;

and

eating a portion of the food item while the remainder of said food item remains in the pocket.

6. The convenient eating method as recited in claim 5, wherein the step of eating a portion of the food item is followed by the step of removing the glove from the hand by grasping the wrist portion of the glove and turning the glove inside out to envelope the pocket and remaining food item therein.

7. The convenient eating method as recited in claim 6, wherein the glove further comprises a skirt, and wherein the step of eating a portion of the food item further comprises 5 the step of catching falling food debris by the skirt.